

Philosophy at Grantchester 2009

An invitation to the first of this summer's Grantchester talks

Philosophy and Beauty

10 am to Noon on Saturday 2nd May at the Tea Room at The Orchard
Trumpington Road, Grantchester

We all appreciate beauty. But what makes something beautiful? What is beauty? These questions will be explored with the help of the poetry of John Keats and the writings of some of the great philosophers – in the beautiful surroundings of The Orchard. The lecture is open to all and is free of charge, and sponsored by the School of Philosophy, Cambridge.

The Orchard Tea Rooms can be reached by taking Junction 12 off the M11, following the signs to Grantchester, and then turning left off the road to Trumpington. Be careful; the entrance is very easy to pass! Alternatively, why not cycle or walk up the riverside from Cambridge?
