

Philosophy at Grantchester 2010

AN INVITATION TO THE SECOND OF THIS SUMMER'S GRANTCHESTER TALKS

The Genius of Shakespeare

10 am to Noon on Sat 26th June 2010
Tea Room at The Orchard
45-47 Mill Way, Grantchester, Cambridge CB3 9ND

The poet and playwright John Dryden said of Shakespeare:

*'..when he describes anything, you more than see it, you feel it too.....
He was naturally learn'd; he needed not the spectacles of Books to read Nature; he look'd inwards, and found her there'.*

Stephen Bagnold, Barbara Boehling and William Wray, lovers of Shakespeare all, invite you to join them in a celebration of this man's extraordinary genius.

The event is open to all and free of charge.

The Orchard Tea Rooms can be reached by taking Junction 12 off the M11, following the signs to Grantchester and turning left off the road to Trumpington. Be careful; the entrance is very easy to pass. Alternatively you can cycle or walk up the riverside from Cambridge.

Email: info@cbphilosophy.org Web: www.cbphilosophy.org Tel: 0845 450 3688 (local rate)